DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1-19 and 23-27 are pending. Claims 1-18 are allowed. Claims 19, and 23-27 are rejected.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments filed 15 August 2002 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.
3. The applicant argues that the combination of Asamizuya fails to teach "encoding, in real-time, a broadcast video frame sequence to form a broadcast bitstream, while at the same time encoding the broadcast video frame sequence to form a storage bit stream" (see pg. 5 of response filed 14 November 2002). However, the applicant argues that "the Examiner concedes, nowhere is there any teaches or suggestion in the Asamizuya reference of encoding a broadcast video frame sequence to form a broadcast bitstream, while at the same time encoding the broadcast video frame sequence to form a storage bitstream." As stated in the Office Action mailed 15 August 2002, "Asamizuya is silent on teaching the claimed broadcast encoder and transmitting the bitstream at the same time as storing the bitstream." Accordingly, the deficiency of storing and transmitting at the same time is taught by Liu (col. 3-, ll. ll. 36-42).
4. The applicant argues that the Liu teaches copying an encoded video bitstream into the mass storage (see pg. 6 of response). However, the examiner notes that there is no suggestion or limitation in the claims, which circumvents the interpretation of copying an encoded video bitstream into the mass storage as argued.

Application/Control Number: 09/201,530
Art Unit: 2611

5. The examiner recognizes that the inventions are different, however, the claim language does not recite that the encoder for the broadcast bitstream and the encoder for the storage bitstream are separate and distinct encoders. Accordingly, the interpretation of Liu, that is, the storage and transmission bitstreams are encoded by the same encoder, reads on the claim language.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claims 19 and 23-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent 6,314,576 to Asamizuya et al. in view of U.S. Patent 5,970,233 to Liu et al. and U.S. Patent 5,701,383 to Russo et al.

8. Regarding claims 19, 23-25, and 27, Asamizuya teaches encoding a video frame sequence to form a storage bitstream (col. 9, ll. 2-19), which is stored then is archive storage (col. 10, ll. 41-48). Asamizuya teaches transmitting the video stream to subscribers (col. 10, ll. 41-48).

Asamizuya is silent on teaching the claimed broadcast encoder and transmitting the bitstream at the same time as storing the bitstream.

Application/Control Number: 09/201,530
Art Unit: 2611

Liu teaches encoding video frame sequences to form a broadcast stream and storing and transmitting the encoded data (col. 3, ll. 36-42).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Asamizuya by encoding a video frame sequence as and transmitting and storing the encoded data as taught by Liu in order to compress the data and consequently making efficient use of the bandwidth while storing and transmitting at the same time.

Asamizuya is silent on teaching switching from decoding a storage bitstream to a broadcast bit stream.

Russo teaches switching from the storage bitstream to the broadcast bit stream, where a time-shifted version of the program is transmitted and is fast forwarded until it "catches up" with the broadcasted program (col. 3, ll. 31-38).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Asamizuya by switching from decoding a storage bitstream to a broadcast bit stream as taught by Russo in order to permit the user to view the time-shifted portion of a program and upon a request fast forward up to the current broadcast, thereby enabling real-time viewing of the broadcasted information.

Regarding claim 26, Asamizuya teaches a play bitstream, but Asamizuya and Liu are silent on teaching fast forward and fast reverse. Lee teaches both fast forward and fast reverse bitstreams (Abstract). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Asamizuya and Liu by using fast forward and fast reverse in order to enable the viewer to control the display thereby providing a more interactive environment and more flexibility to the user.

Conclusion

9. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
